

TROOPS WILL BE HELD IN READINESS

May Be Needed to Prevent Trouble During Trial of Ross Negroes.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Raleigh, N. C., January 7.—Governor Kitchin gave an order today for the Shelby Company, of the North Carolina National Guard, to be on constant duty at the armory or courthouse and all as the sheriff may direct this week during the trial of the Ross negroes for the murder of Mr. and Mrs. John Dixon, the friendliness of which shocked the entire country a few weeks ago. A shipment of heavy army service overcoats was sent today from the national guard supply headquarters here for the men to use during this bitter cold weather while they must be on duty. The trial begins at Shelby on Tuesday, and the Ross negroes will be carried from Gastonia to Shelby on Monday. Judge J. L. Webb will preside at the trial.

The trustees of the Eastern Carolina Teachers' Training School, Greenville, have made definite arrangements for a big summer school for teachers during the coming summer. The board was in session last week, and directed a special committee to work out the details for a summer school. Dr. J. Y. Joyner, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, attended the session of the board, and is assisting in the preliminaries for the summer school.

All arrangements have been made for the ceremony of the laying of the corner-stone for the North Carolina Marine Home for the Aged and Infirm at Greensboro on Tuesday morning, and for the running of a special train to Raleigh to bring the members of the Grand Lodge, preparatory to the convening of the Grand Lodge in annual convention in the temple here on Tuesday evening. Hon. R. N. Hackett is the grand master, and he is to retire this time, giving place to William M. McCoy, of Wilmington, who has come up through the chairs of the Grand Lodge with a great degree of devotion to the temple and a selfless effort for the good of the order.

Hon. William Jennings Bryan left on an early morning train for Washington, where he goes especially to attend the Jackson day dinner. He was accompanied by Josephine Daniels, Democratic national committeewoman from North Carolina, who is to attend the national committee meeting on Monday, which will decide the time and place for the National Convention.

On Friday of this week there will take place the execution of Cleveland Garner, colored, convicted of the murder of a negro girl in Wayne county, near Mount Olive. She was at work in a cotton field when Garner shot her from ambush. There is understood to be no effort on foot to obtain either reprieve or commutation.

The people of Raleigh awoke this morning to find the first mantle of snow spread abroad to the depth of three inches. There has been some moderation in the temperature compared with the lower record of two degrees above zero that was reached Saturday morning. The Raleigh Associated Charities is having a big increase of appeals for aid, especially in the matter of food.

DRY GOODS REVIEW

New York, January 7.—Cotton goods trading was of moderate volume during the week. Some further revisions were made, and the market is gradually being leveled to the level that has prevailed on gray cloths for some time past. Printed shirtings have been priced on a basis of 1/2 cents for Americans and Merinaues, and one of the prominent lines of Eastern brown shirtings has been revised to 5/8 cents from the top of 5/8 cents at one period last year. Now it does not appear that China trade will revive in the near future, but the miscellaneous export trade continues steady, and is very promising at this time. Some small sized Sen business and some small India business was done. Of the 15,000 pieces of print cloth sold at Fall River about 50,000 were for spot delivery. The balance being futures for delivery as far ahead as April. There was more firmness in the wide print cloth markets at the end of the week.

Preliminary showings of cotton blankets and napped fabrics are being made, and new prices for the fall season will be heard the latter part of the month. Jobbers are predicting to get a little new business on wash fabrics. Retailers are now featuring white goods and domestic goods sales. Some few of the large buyers have been in the market, but the larger part has not looked for until the third week of the month, when the annual meetings of the Jobbers' Association will take place here.

HE GOT HIS DRINK

Then Policeman Put Woman Who Served It Under Arrest.

In the exercise of his privileges as a policeman, Officer Dubuque walked into the home of Mrs. Amanda Retter, 1408 East Main Street, and asked for a drink, something stimulating, as the weather was bitter cold. Outside Detective Gentry and Policeman Gary shuffled their feet in the snow, and wished they were on the inside, where the air was warm and the layout was comforting. Dubuque got his drink, so it is alleged, and then he reached over and laid his hand on Mrs. Retter's arm.

"You are under arrest," he said. She was charged with selling intoxicating liquors without a license.

In the station house she said that she thought she had sold to sell her home-made wine, she makes them all herself—and that she had no intention of violating the law. The officers did not discover whiskey or beer in the house. There was nothing but wine.

"It was very good, too," said Dubuque, snacking his lips.

NEW WHITE HOPE IN STF SIKLOWSKY

Russian With Big Muscle Givies Wild Exhibition at Blow-Out.

In celebrating their merry Yuletide two weeks later, the time adopted by other churches, part of the Russian colony was thrown into an uproar last night, and one St. Siklowsky (Russian spelling, St. meaning Steve) emerged, according to stories by his countrymen, master of all he surveyed, and two others left the house with cracked skulls.

Mike Glasik came to the First Police Station nursing a badly cut head. He was covered with blood, and was half crazed from a bad-looking wound in the forehead. When they asked who had assaulted him, all he could reply was "St." Then he shut his eyes and whimpered.

Dr. Watts of the city ambulance was called to the station, and, after working half an hour, he sewed up the cut and dressed other minor wounds with which Mike's face was decorated.

Two other members of the colony, who do not, however, belong to the Greek Church, followed Mike to the station and related harrowing stories of St. Siklowsky. From all accounts, he should be led into the footlights as the "white man's hope."

They said he had been arrested six times, once for carrying a pistol, and other times for too free use of his fists and too many broken heads.

The feast and the fight occurred at 10 North Seventeenth Street, where Mike was giving a little "blow-out" to his friends. Enter St. Siklowsky, he drank to the health of all, wished them a merry Yuletide, and then set to work with a bottle of wine.

They said he had been arrested six times, once for carrying a pistol, and other times for too free use of his fists and too many broken heads.

TICKLED TOO MUCH

Young Man Falls Down Steps and Cuts an Artery.

Medical books contain instances of people who have been tickled to death, but none, so far, is on record in Virginia. Yesterday afternoon, however, R. J. Watkins, a young man living at 608 East Leigh Street, was tickled so much by a young woman living in the house that he fell down the stairs from the hallway, and cut an artery in his left arm.

People in the house found themselves helpless to aid him, and the young girl, who had been the innocent cause of the accident, was much frightened.

The city ambulance was called, and Dr. Watts came to the house. After working on the artery for some time, he found it impossible to stay the flow of blood, and took Mr. Watkins to the Virginia Hospital.

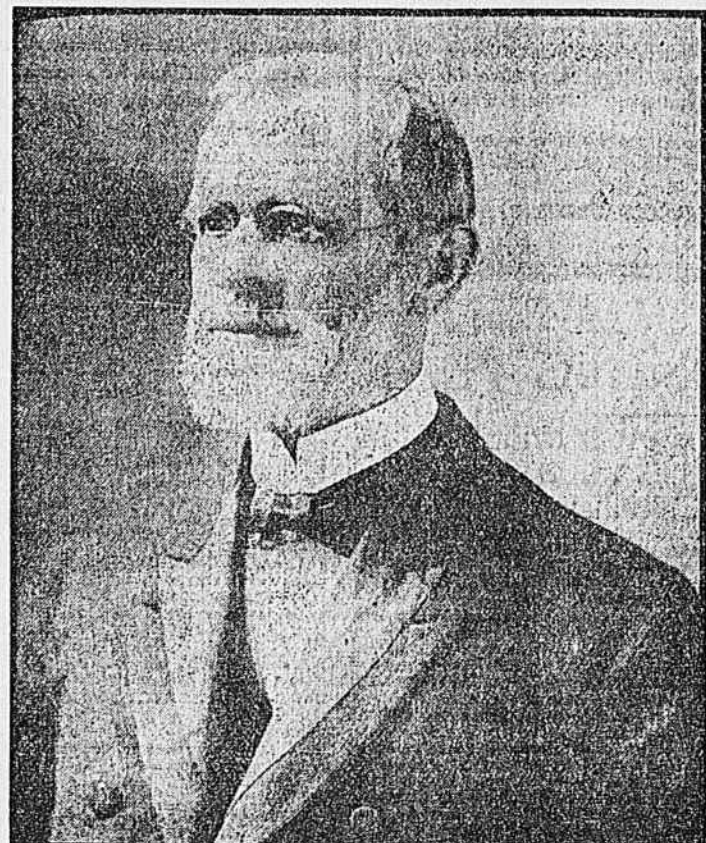

About fourteen months ago Mr. Watkins has his arm amputated, following an accident. The artery was severed at the end of the stump, which added to the difficulty the physician had in binding the wound.

Wanted in South Carolina.

Mamie Jackson, alias Bessie Rogers, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Detective Atkinson on a warrant from Florence, S. C., where the girl is charged with grand larceny. She is said to have stolen three dress suits and a quantity of clothing.

After a day's search, the detective found the girl at 20 North Fourteenth Street. She was taken to the First Station, and Captain McMahon telegraphed the Florence authorities to come for her with papers.

Cleveland Abbe Gets Medal

The Royal Meteorological Society has awarded the Symon's gold medal to Cleveland Abbe, the meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau in Washington, in recognition of his work. The medal will be presented at a meeting of the society on January 17. Cleveland Abbe is known throughout the world as one of the foremost meteorologists. He was the pioneer in the forecasting of weather, having inaugurated in 1869 a daily weather report for the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, which led the United States government to take up at once similar work. His works on meteorological matters are considered authorities.

DESTROYER TERRY WILL MAKE FIGHT ON ANNEXATION

from Newbern, N. C., for Baltimore. The four men had fought the storm since Friday night without food, and at the mercy of the high-running seas. They were put ashore at Hooper's Island.

The wrecked schooner was picked up by the revenue cutter Apache and towed into Hooper's Island light today, and the story of the suffering and rescue came to Baltimore by wireless telegraph from the operator on the Apache.

The Elsie left Newbern nearly two weeks ago, and encountered heavy northwest gales nearly all the way up the coast.

When the vessel finally found her way into the city, she was several days behind her schedule and the food supply had run out.

The first heavy gale in the Chesapeake Bay struck the Elsie Thursday night, and her first sail went away with the gust. All night the crew remained on the icy decks, and when the wind increased Friday morning they were compelled to hang to supports and watch the vessel's buffetings by the wind and high waves.

Late Friday afternoon the windlass and steering gear broke, leaving the ship at the mercy of the winds. Both anchors were dropped, but they were soon torn away. The main boom fouled the yawlbolt and smashed it to splinters, leaving the sailors utterly helpless.

The schooner was driven by the wind out of the path of bay boats and tugs, and her distress signals were not seen. All Friday night and yesterday Captain Harrison and the crew were forced to stay in the after-cabin of the disabled ship. Nearly exhausted from the lack of food and warmth, they made their final stand last night.

Schooner's Crew Rescued.

Dayton, Fla., January 7.—After battling all night with the waves, the crew of the schooner Emily B., bound from Jacksonville to Palm Beach, were rescued early today in Mosquito Inlet. The schooner, which was laden with gasoline, attempted to run into the inlet last night, when she struck a bar and broke in two. Members of the crew were compelled to jump overboard and cling to bits of wreckage throughout the night, until they were picked up by a tug.

Store Broken Into.

J. Eddie Wood, of 206 West Broad Street, reported to the police yesterday that his store had been entered Saturday night, and that a shotgun and two repeating rifles, all valued at $40, had been stolen. Entrance was forced through a rear window.

Wanted to Feel Good.

Thinking, he said afterwards, to make himself "feel good," Robert C. Tucker, a young man living at 212 N. Street, took half an ounce of laudanum last night, and nearly died as a result.

Dr. Watts, of the city ambulance, was called to the house. When he arrived the young man was in desperate straits, and it was only after an hour's work that the physician declared his patient out of danger. Every heroic measure known to medicine was resorted to in restoring him.

Sunday School Meeting.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Sunday School Association of the Christian churches of Richmond was held at the Third Christian Church yesterday afternoon. Thomas C. Diggs, secretary of the State International Association, delivered an address. The work is well organized under the leadership of Rev. Gerald Culbertson, and plans are being made for marked activity in the future. The next meeting will be held on the first Sunday in March at the Marshall Street Christian Church.

Annual Banquet on Tuesday.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
Warrenton, Va., January 7.—The Warrenton Rifles, Company C, Second Regiment, Virginia Infantry, will give its annual banquet on January 9 at the Warren Green Hotel. Among the notable guests expected are Hon. C. C. Carlin, Adjutant-General Sale, Colonel Robert Leedy and staff, and prominent citizens of Warrenton and Paulsboro, N. J.

A QUESTION OF TEMPERAMENT

—By Thomas R. Stetson—

With Character Illustrations by Cyrus Fomire

The great city was heartless—bloodless—merciless—and the woman—she was only a girl, really—was sweet and young and beautiful—a pretty moth that fought against the flame. This is a story that makes your blood boil, that awakens your sympathy—that holds you till the tale is finished.

COLD CAUSES GREAT SUFFERING IN VALLEY

Weather Most Severe Experienced in Many Years.

Brakeman Has Leg Cut Off—Dr. Wiley Will Be Invited to Address Farmers.

(Special to The Times-Dispatch.)
The cold wave which came so suddenly and unexpectedly late Thursday night is waning. Snow fell last night, and the temperature is now about the freezing point. The cold wave was the most severe that has been experienced in the lower Shenandoah Valley in a great many years, and there has been much suffering, the cold having been unusually penetrating. Friday night was cold, but the weather was not so severe. The Society for the prevention of Cruelty to Animals has taken steps to prosecute a number of people who allowed horses, cattle and swine to remain unprotected during the cold wave.

William Peyton, aged twenty-four years, a brakeman on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, had his right leg cut off yesterday by a passenger train at Waverton, and was taken to his home at Brunswick for medical attention. The day before the same train ran down M. Le House and cut off both legs at Waverton.

Ada Norris, colored, a native of Grottoes, who died a few days ago of heart disease in Martinsburg, W. Va., weighed 160 pounds, and the largest and strongest coffin ever made in that city was used in which to bury her remains. She died upright, and it was necessary to dismember the body of the deceased before the body could be taken out. The day before the same train ran down M. Le House and cut off both legs at Waverton.

Representatives of a number of firms engaged in the manufacture of liquid asphalt appeared in Winchester, a day or two ago before directors of a number of turnpike companies of the city and county officials, and explained the merits of their products as used for the paving of streets and highways. It is expected that many of the county roads and streets of Winchester not already paved will be coated with the liquid asphalt during the early spring.

Isaac N. Arnold, who died at Oppegan, near Winchester, last week, aged about forty years, leaving his widow and two children, served in the United States army during the Philippine insurrection, and contracted a disease there which was the cause of his death. The government gave him a liberal pension and made it a point to honor the major portion of the large estate of Frederick county for a number of years.

When Newton J. Wigginton, of Frederick county, asked the Common Council of Winchester for a permit authorizing him to erect a lime-sulphur solution plant near the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, it raised such a storm of protest on the part of property-owners of that part of the town that the Council voted unanimously to reject the petition and not to allow the erection of the plant within the city limits. Residents claimed it would decrease the value of their property, and that the fumes would tarnish their silverware.

The will of the late Thomas Nell Lewis, former Mayor of Winchester, which was admitted to record last week, leaves all his real estate and personal property to his only daughter, Mrs. Alice Woods, wife of Rev. William H. Woods, D. D., of Baltimore, for her lifetime, after which it is to be divided between her two sons. The estate consists of residential property in Winchester and a large farm in Frederick county.

All the officers elected at the November election took the prescribed oath of office this week. The majority of the officers succeeded themselves. The most important change was in the treasurer's office, Charles R. McCann succeeding S. M. Chiles, who has been treasurer of Frederick county for a number of years.

At a large meeting of farmers and fruit growers, held here last week, preliminary arrangements were made to hold a farmers' institute here on March 12 and 13. It was stated that Dr. Harvey W. Wiley and other experts would accept invitations to address the meetings. It is expected that the institute will be converted into a permanent organization.
